

CRIT III

Criterion 3: Evidence of Continuing Preparation and Study '22-'23

1. Attend commencements: December, 2021-'22 and May, 2022-'23.
2. I benefited so much from attending the following six advising workshops over the '20-'21 school year: Effective Advising (9-17); Academic Planning/Registration (part 1;10-18); Academic Standing (11-19); Graduation Reviews/Process (1-21); Advising Tools/Communication (2-18); Academic Planning Registration (pt. 2; 3-18), which offers me more confidence through advising my load of 46 students majoring in creative writing.
3. I will continue to work hands on as the faculty advisor for Metro's literary magazine, Haute Dish over the next two academic years.
4. I will continue to attend the student writers' group, Get Lit, which meets the first Sunday evening of each month throughout the calendar year. This event is open to current students as well as alumni. Current monthly numbers range from 10-21 students/alumni.
5. I will continue writing letters of recommendation for students applying to grad school(s) and scholarship funds.
6. I will be active in the writing community, and to collaborate on community literary events promoting Metro State's creative writing program/students.
7. I intend to be active in the scheduling of student creative reading events annually for fall semesters, '21-22, and spring semester(s), '22-23.

Criterion 3: Evidence of Continuing Preparation and Study '23-'24

1. I routinely send creative work (poetry/fiction) to a minimum of 10 journals annually for ongoing publication.
2. I appeared on the CBS Morning Show in April, '23 for my new poetry collection, Face Up. I continue to do readings in the metro area this spring, '24.
3. I drafted a collection of poetry during my sabbatical and I am revising my collection, 70 Proof, for publication.
4. I continue to guest speak in MDST 487: Podcasting class, fall and spring '23-'24.
5. I continued to chair the Carothers Distinguished Writers Award for '22-23.
6. I worked directly with Student Leadership to develop more writing opportunities for our students. Currently I am collaborating on a project with Carrie Noble with a working title: What's Your Thing? This is a writing program plan for students/staff and faculty. (more to come)
7. I continued to advise Haute Dish over the last two academic years through regular scheduled meetings with the editorial staff, and through attending Haute Dish readings. Advising this journal is a blessing and a curse. We have a student volunteer editorial staff of 12; we have a managing editor; a lay out design student rep; a social media student rep; and a business manager. We have monthly meetings (minimum), and my volunteers are often on rotation due to other commitments. Haute Dish is phenomenal, but it's an extensive amount of work. I will work this spring with our out-going managing editor and our new managing editor with Haute Dish for the school years, 2024-'25.
8. My colleague and I have ongoing brainstorming about new course developments for the Creative Writing major. For the first time we are offering a Writing Science Fiction/Fantasy course this summer. Some ideas we are building on include: WRIT 324? Spoken Word, Slam, and Performance Poetry, 2 credits, (second half of Fall 2025, Monday nights from 6 - 9:50 pm, Synchronous). We also are offering WRIT 324: Topics in Writing: Science Fiction and Fantasy for the first time, Summer, 2024.
9. I was interviewed by Diversity Rules Magazine:

<https://diversityrulesmagazine.com/poet-suzanne-nielsen-reflects-on-the-33rd-anniversary-of-the-passage-of-the-americans-with-disabilities-act-ada/>

Criterion 3: Evidence of Continuing Preparation and Study. '24-'26

1. I am working with Carrie Noble brainstorming programming ideas that will involve a series with various CLA faculty for 1-hour slots, either on Tuesdays, Wednesdays or Thursdays. What we intend to do is interest students in writing, developing a passion for overall health. Hybrid, 1 time a month with the working title: "What's your Thing?"
2. I will attend commencements: May, 2024-'26, and December, 2024-'26.
3. I will continue working on our 2-year plan.
4. I will continue working with our dean on our growth plan.
5. I will continue to work obtaining an independent section of WRIT 371.
6. I benefit so much from attending the Teaching and Research (TAR) talks provided by CLA, and I hope they continue into next year.
7. I will continue to work hands-on as the faculty advisor for Metro's literary magazine, Haute Dish over the next two academic years.
8. I will continue to attend the student writers' group, Get Lit, which meets the first Sunday evening of each month throughout the calendar year. This event is open to current students as well as alumni. Current monthly attendance ranges from 10-21.
9. I will continue writing letters of recommendation for students applying to grad school(s) and scholarship funds.
10. I will be active in the writing community, and to collaborate on community literary events promoting Metro State's creative writing program/students.
11. I intend to be active in the scheduling of student creative reading events annually for fall semesters, '24-26, and spring semester(s), '24-26.